Pictured on these pages are some of the prize winners in the 1959 MAY SHOW. 3,430 objects were entered. Only 532 met the high standards of the jury. This figure still gives Cleveland one of the largest and finest regional art shows held in America or elsewhere.

This year's Show is highly contemporary. It reflects the advanced stylistic trends found in art all over the world today. It is representative not only of art in Cleveland but of art in America.

Most of the objects exhibited are for sale. Prices cover a wide range. Some are as low as $5.00 and a life-size horse in copper is $20,000.00. The contemporary, elegant lines of the silver and enamel pieces show a rare - perhaps incomparable - skill. The gold work is delicate and exquisitely wrought.

The Show will be on exhibit through June 14 and is open free to the public.
